ATLANTA, GA., OCTOBER 25, 1878. MR. ARNOLD declares that the currency which he is now pretending to favor is unconstitutional. Call you this greenbacking of your friends?

BURD BOBETTE, of the Burlington Hawk eye, pretends that he is coming south one of these days, but he said this to amuse the children. He is not coming. Frank Hatton's political editorials in behalf of the sutlers have frightened him into the belief that the southerners are all assassins, that they stand eleven feet high in their stocking-feet, and carry seventy-one unlawful weapons upon their muscular persons.

Let everybody go to the fair grounds stores and shops will close at 12. Let us show our visitors what Atlanta can do in the way of a crowd when she turns out of doors. Let everybody go. Extra trains will run, and people. Just rally once for Atlanta's sake, and let us have the biggest crowd ever assembled in Georgia.

Ir the editor of our esteemed contemporary, the New York Tribune, has any more cipher dispatches, we trust he will at once lay them before the critical eyes of the country. It is unwise to allow us to go without our usual daily allowance of cipher telegrams. When they are really exhausted, the Tribune will become to be one of the most monotonous of American newspapers.

HOWARD CARROLL alludes to Ladd, who was murdered by revenue officers in South Carolina, as an illicit distiller. This is a He was a friend of the distille for whom the officers were in search, and they, laboring no doubt under the delusion that he was the man, fired upon and killed him. The law does not authorize a revenue officer to fire upon an illicit distiller even though the latter is endeavoring to escape. It is this fact that has enraged the people of South Carolina. The men who shot Ladd Excursion trains will run from Atlanta. are guilty of cold-blooded murder.

THERE are those who believe that the candidature of Corker in the first district threatens the integrity of the democratic party. All such may allay their fears. The active support of such men as Hartridge, and Norwood, and Lawton, and Lester settles any doubt that may have wheat, petroleum, tobacco and pork, been entertained as to Chatham county, and this settled, all the rest is settled. As | All this is very true, but such a statement Chatham goes, so the district will does not reach back to the real troubleof the large audience that filled robbed the farmers of the south of two the Athenæum in Savannah recently and cents on every pound of cotton they have listened to the remarkable speech of Julian Hartridge-we do not believe that to first causes, we find that the trouble is one of them can get their consent to vote found in the Sherman plan of resump against the democratic party.

MR. ARNOLD, the independent greenback candidate, in a plea which is still pending in the courts, swore that he beieved the greenback currency to be unconstitutional, and yet, standing upon the accommodating platform of Judge Pittman, formed of Uncle Peter Cooper's air-cushions, he is in favor of issuing an unlimited quantity of this unconstitutional currency. He is not in favor of the financial platform of Mr. Pendleton, of Judge Thurman, or of Mr. Voorhees Not at all. They are all too mildly in favor of this "unconstitutional" currency. They do not go far enough; Colonel Hammond does not go far enough; the platform of the Barnesville convention does not go far enough. The Reuben-Dan campaign is a campaign in favor of fiat money. Not content with declaring the greenback currency unconstitutional, Reuben is anxious to sweep it out of existence by issuing it in such quantities and under such quantities as to make

Some of our state exchanges, echoing the statements of some of Dr. Felton's irresponsible organs in the seventh district, intimate that we have at some time or other spoken disrespectfully of Mrs. Felton. It is needless to say to our own particular circle of readers that nothing could be further from the truth than this. So far from having spoken disrespectfully of Mrs. Felton, we have time and again paid her the compliment of saying that she was the life and soul of her husband's campaign; that but for her vigorous intellect and untiring energy there would never have been a doubt as to the result of the race. If it is disrespectful to speak of her as her husband's private secretary, then we must put in plea her own letters. We certainly intended no disrespect, for we believe that to-day the country does not hold a more charming, a more accomplished, or a more gifted lady than the wife of Dr. Felton. If the organs choose to say that this is disrespectful, which they will no doubt be inclined to do, they are wel-

Our respected republican exchanges are not working the southern claims business as persistently as they might, since they were confidentially informed by THE CONSTITUTION that the crusade against the claims of so-called southern loyalists would be promptly joined in by the southern democrats, who are not at all desirous of allowing the government to be swindled as it was swindled when, according to the campaign boast of John rman, one hundred millions were squandered in paying the claims of these ogus southern loyalists. Witness: F. S. Packard, May 30, 1878.

A Brooklyn correspondent says Justices Pratt and Gilbert, having questioned the girl privately, returned to the bench, and Justice Pratt announced that he was satisfied that the girl was not in any way deprived of her liberty by her parents. Being sworn, Miss Applegate testified that she had been acquainted with Armstrong for over a year before she signed the paper produced, which at the time she understood was only a promise to marry him at some future.

time. Since then Armstrong had spoken to her as his wife, and she had addressed him as husband, but not in public.

F. S. Packard, the witness to the paper, testified that he had been asked by Armstrong to go to Mr. Applegate's house to witness a marriage contract, and that on going there Miss Applegate met them in the hall, and he was introduced to her as "my friend," who has come to witness the contract of marriage between us; that he asked the young lady if she had read the contract, and if she understood it and considered it legal. To all these questions he testified she answered in the affirmative. He said also that he asked her if she was of age, and if she was acting under coercion. To the first question she answered yes and to the latter no. Then Armstrong said: "By the terms of this contract I take you to be my lawful wife," and that Miss Applegate responded, "By the terms of this contract I take you to be my lawful husband;" that after that Miss Applegate got pen and ink, and the contract was signed on the marble slab of the hatrack.

After that he came to this city and established a retail drug store at 11½ Broadway in this district, where he made money rapidly. He then went into the drug commission business at 47 Maiden Lane in New York, where he remained until age and a paralytic stroke compelled him to retire from active pursuits. Fine Art.

In the art hall few pictures are so much admired as the exquisite water color scenes of English landscapes painted by Mrs. J. W. Thomas, of Atlanta. They are finished with a peculiar delicacy that marks a truly artistic talent and taste. The pencil sketches of Miss Ida Ormond are also peculiarly beautiful. They are so artistically done as to resemble steel engravings very much. Mrs. Thomas and her sister have done much to make the art hall beautiful and attractive. On the 22d inst. Colonel J. N. Arnold, of Greene county, had his gin-house, saw-mill, engine and twenty-three bales of cotton de-stroyed by fire, caused by the careless use of a match by a negro girl. The loss is esti

NOTES OF THE DAY.

Go and see the mule race and foot race on

It is hoped that his Excellency Governor Colquitt will visit the fair to-day. Secure your seats early for the Georgia minstrels at DeGive's Saturday night.

The fair is pronounced the grandest success ever held in Atlanta. The halls will be kept in full blast on aturday, and they afford much interest. The Douglass infantry (colored), from Augusta, will contest on Saturday.

It is estimated that over 30,000 colored people will be on the grounds on Saturday. It is hoped our citizens will give their servants holiday on Saturday.

It will be the pleasure of every citizen to urge a full attendance of the colored people on Saturday.

We learn that a trotting purse for Saturday was voted last night by the directors of the fair association to take place Saturday.

The social party at Good Templars' hall tonight will afford those in attendance an excellent place to see the Rex parade.

The performance of the Madrigal boys brass band yesterday was received with applanse. It was a great attraction for the fair.

REX'S ROYAL PROCESSION The Grand Ball To-night. The great Rex procession to-night will be a pecunarly interesting ceremony. It has been prepared at great expense, and will astonish the crowds with its

PECULIAE MAGNIFICENCE.

Everybody should turn out to see it. The streets will be lined with spectators, and the great event of the week will occur to-night. For the benefit of the public who wish to see the great and gorgeous array, we will publish the follows:

It is ordered that the line of march of the Mystic Brotherhood, on the night of the 25th instant, shall be as follows: From corner of Mitchell and Whitehall streets, down Whitehall to Alabama, down Alabama to Loyd, up Loyd to Wall, up Wall to Pryor, up Pryor to Peachtree, down Peachtree to Marietta, up Marietta. The citizens along the line of march are requested to illuminate their houses. No fireworks allowed to be exploded during the passage of the procession.

The merchants' procession.

The unattached will assemble in front of the uniton passenger depot. This includes all persons desiring to advertise their various avocations—merchants, mechanics and others.

The lord of the unattached will, in person, superintend the procession. All Independent maskers who desire to join the merry march must report to this functionary at 7:30 o'clock, sharp, Friday night, October 25th.

His majesty orders a general illumination along the line of march. A general display of the royal colons is desired.

Listen, ye! Let us make the welkin ring with fun and pleasure.

Our lady subjects are requested, on the day of the celebration of the harvest feast, to wear the royal colors. REX NIGHT.

After the procession there will be at the THE GRAND TABLEAUX, in which members of the brotherhood who were in the street procession will take part. The scene there will be brilliant in the azzling array of beauty representing the legance and aristoracy of Georgia. After he tableaux there will occur the Rex ball, the tableaux there will occur the Rex ball, which will be the social event of the season in Atlanta. There are hundreds of the most elegant ladies in the state now in the city, and an array of fashion and beauty such as is seldom seen, even in the south, may be expected.

Those who hold tickets are fortunate as the ball offers a great variety of attractions. The Mystic Brotherhood will be in its glory to night. Already the city is putting on the royal colors of green and gold. Everywhere the marks of respect to Rex may be seen. He is coming in unwonted pomp, and it is fit that his reception should be gorgeous. To-night the city will be over the royal entry. Thousands will come in to-day to see it. Rex is receiving his due homage from his loyal subjects. To-Day at the Fair.

To-day will be the most eventful one of the fair week, and it is to be hoped that there will be a large attendance. So far there are many clerks in the various estab lishments in our city who have not been able to attend by reason of the fact that the houses with whom they are employed remained open all day, and their attendance mained open all day, and their attendance was necessary. We gladly give space to a card which is presented below, in which many of the most prominent merchants agree to close their doors at 12 m. We hope that the closing will be general. The banks and railroad shops will suspend business at noon, so as to allow their employees to have a little recreation and enjoyment by visiting our fair. Again we urge upon our merchants to close up their places of business and allow their employees to attend the fair. To-day's programme presents unusual attractions, and to-day should be the largest one of the entire week. The Few persons have any idea of the enormous animals and reptiles that existed in ancient days, the remains of which are found in such immense quanties intermingled with the phosphate nodules in the great phosphate beds near Charleston, S. The farmers of the South are also aware of its fertilizing powers and are using it on their crops with great-satisfaction.
